McNair Law Firm Selects Acrowire for SharePoint Implementation

Charlotte, N.C. (January, 19 2015) – Acrowire, a consulting firm specializing in strategic business and legal technology, has been hired by McNair Law Firm to stand up their on-premise SharePoint 2013 environment. Within this engagement, Acrowire is responsible for creating a unified web application, synchronizing data and providing search capabilities, all of which are designed to create a more collaborative and productive platform for users.

"McNair is continuously seeking to improve internal operations and impact business performance. Upgrading to SharePoint 2013 has been on my radar, but after learning more about its improved functionality during one of Acrowire's ILTA roadshows here in Columbia, I knew it was time for our firm to begin taking advantage of this new release," said Mike Kirton, Director of Technology.

"McNair is a highly respected and successful law firm that we look forward to engaging with on this SharePoint project. My team is committed to leveraging the latest technologies to help optimize and transform business operations. We especially enjoy working on SharePoint 2013 engagements because we can trust the improved functionality and witness real change occur," said Ted Theodoropoulos, president of Acrowire.

The project began in late December 2014 and will continue through early 2015.

About McNair Law Firm

Headquartered in Columbia, South Carolina, McNair Law Firm, P.A., is a full-service law firm serving businesses, non-profits, government and individual clients. The firm traces its origins to 1971, when former governor Robert E. McNair founded a firm dedicated to handling legal needs for businesses in South Carolina. Today, led by Managing Shareholder, David J. Tigges, McNair maintains nine office locations—seven across South Carolina, one in Kentucky and one in North Carolina — positioning them to serve clients where and when they need them across the Southeast. Since the founding of the firm, McNair has remained committed to the success of both their clients and their communities.
